Recreation Plans for Summer Laid by P.-T. A. Group

Supervised Playground Program Beneficial in Child-Training

All-Day Session Friday Presided Over by Mrs. Goodson, DeQueen

The 13th District Parent-Teachers association met at Hope city hall auditorium Friday morning at 10 o'clock with Mrs. Goodson of DeQueen, district director, in charge.

Mrs. O. A. Graves gave the address of welcome which was responded to by Mrs. Manning of DeQueen.

Mrs. Ralph Routon presented plans and suggestions for summer recreation for the children. Mrs. Routon said that recreation can be educational and can prove beneficial to the boys and girls if properly supervised. She pointed out the fact that a definite summer program should be planned for every child. He should have certain responsibilities as well as play time.

Noon Luncheon

At noon, luncheon was served at Hotel Barlow to 85 delegates. Miss Beryl Henry was toast mistress. Mrs. W. Y. Foster, Jr. sang "My Love Is Like a Red Red Rose" and "In the Garden of Your Heart." Miss Helen McRae played two violin solos, "Londonderry Air" and "Nobody Knows the Trouble I See." They were both accompanied by Mrs. C. C. McNeill at the piano.

During the afternoon session, Mrs. Henry Haynes, principal of Brookwood school, presented a demonstration of a teaching unit with a sixth grade class. The unit was called "Knighthood."

Miss Pearl Williamson of DeQueen, chairman of Character Education of the Arkansas Congress of Parent-Teachers, addressed the meeting on the subject, "Every Move a Character Move." She said that every Parent-Teacher program should be a character program. The Parent-Teachers association has an opportunity to mold public opinion by having well planned and well advertised programs.

"People should realize," she said, "that everything influences the child's character. We must train them to do right and to exercise self-control. One thousand and one mean things would not be done daily by adults had they been taught self-control during childhood."

Home Comes First

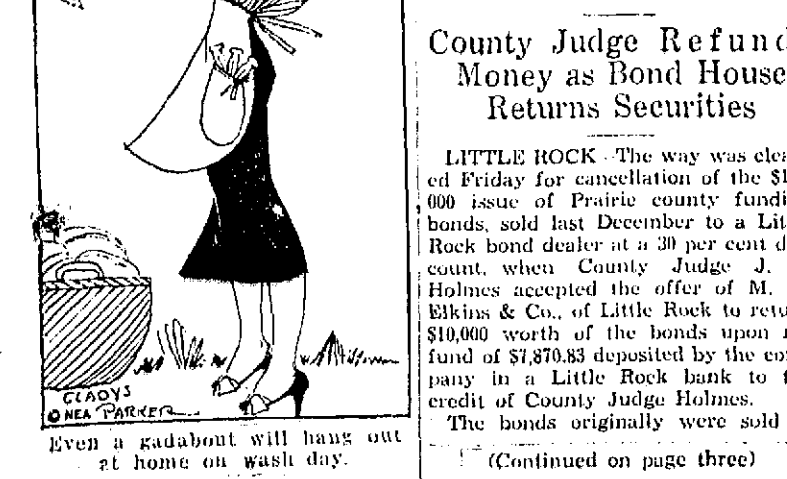

"Parents and teachers should give intelligent guidance. The home, being the primal social cell, makes the main move in this. Dr. Sweet said that the greatest need in the world is a Christian life in the home."

113 Millions Set Up for U. S. Relief Costs During April

Georgia Eliminated Entirely—Pennsylvania Held to 1/2 Month

Arkansas Allotment $1,136,515—Congress to End Tax-Free Bonds

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, Saturday allotted $113,661,384 for April relief.

Georgia was the only state to receive no funds, while Pennsylvania was granted only enough for the first half month.

The grants included: Arkansas $1,136,515.

Funds included those for general and drought relief, transient aid, emergency education and student aid.

End Tax-Exempt Bonds

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Expressing confidence that they can defeat the Townsend old age pension plan, house leaders determined Friday to bring it to a direct vote and end the fight over it for this session.

Meantime, they used in the continuing debate one of the biggest sales talk points in the administration's social security bill—the fact that it is designed to end public sales of tax-exempt federal securities.

Townsendites, who want to substitute their up-to-$200-a-month federal administration's bill, feared the pensions for the old age pensions in proposal would be ruled out of order. But Speaker Byrnes said to newspapermen, "I think we can take care of that."

Huge Fund Envisaged

The intention to eliminate tax-exempt securities was brought out by Representative Sam B. Hill of Washington, ranking Democrat on the house ways and means committee, who said that the pay roll and earnings taxes—raising money to pay old age annuities to persons after they reach 65—would build up a fund of more than $32,000,000,000 by 1970.

"In time," he said, "that money will be used to absorb all outstanding government bonds. The people who now have that great volume of money invested in tax-exempt bonds would not then be so fortunate."

The present public debt of around $30,000,000,000 is represented by government bonds or short-term securities. Persons who invest in them do not have to pay taxes on the income from those bonds. But under the new system, $32,000,000,000 reserve for old age pensions would be used to buy government bonds, forcing present investors to put their money into something else, probably taxable.

Revising NRA

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Working behind the scenes in an effort to meet the monopoly charges thrown against NRA by Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, and others, senate administration leaders started Friday to revise the bill for extending the Blue Eagle.

Borah demanded full restoration of anti-trust laws, an affirmative prohibition against price fixing, and a clear declaration that the government is not seeking to interfere with purely intra-state trade.

Those in charge of the legislation conceded privately that the administration measure introduced recently by Chairman Harrison of the Senate Finance Committee leaned more heavily toward price fixing than does even the present law. There was agreement that it would do little to restore the anti-trust laws. Virtually all agreed, too, that the measure would have to be modified to obtain congressional approval.

Harrison and Senator Wagner, Democrat, New York, collaborated in drafting the bill and in negotiating with Borah. Senator McCarran, Democrat, Nevada, was working on a measure further to curtail NRA's powers by putting the entire code structure on a voluntary basis.

THE NEW DEAL IN WASHINGTON

—BY RODNEY DUTCHER—

WASHINGTON.—No end of nasty cracks have been made at Jim Parley's spoils system and at nepotism in Capitol Hill.

It's about time somebody looked at the "personal friend racket" and nepotism in the huge federal administrative machine, which figure just as important in distribution of New Deal patronage—with results often just as sour.

The two systems combine to invest with absurdity the theory that appointments to most government jobs are based on efficiency and merit.

Outside the Parley-Hurja job machine, which has had its best success operating with regular government departments—especially Justice and Commerce—the town is full of small groups of major and minor officials, as well as individuals, who have es-

England Resigns Kiwanian Office

Leaving City, He Is Succeeded by Charles Dana Gibson

Resignation of Wayne H. England as secretary of the Kiwanis club was announced at the regular session of the Hope club Friday night.

Mr. England is moving to Texarkana to accept a promotion in the insurance business. Charles Dana Gibson was named as Mr. England's successor.

A humorous sketch in honor of Mr. England was given by the Rev. George F. X. Strasser, assisted by Joe Floyd, Vernon Whitton, R. V. Herndon and Early Archer.

Joe Glass, supervisor of the ninth district of the state forestry department, explained the work of the forestry program and outlined its hopes of accomplishment in this district.

Mr. Glass stated that pine timber grows two and one half times faster in southwest Arkansas than any other state in the union. Mr. Glass accompanied the club on its good-will visit to Patmos where he was the principal speaker. He outlined in detail the work of his department in the prevention of soil erosion.

Oliver Williams, president of the club, announced a conference meeting of divisions seven and nine of the Mo-Kan-Ark district Kiwanis to be held in Little Rock April 22.

The governor of the district, Claude Paulhaber, and the lieutenant of these two divisions will conduct the conference. Mr. Williams is scheduled for a talk on rural relations.

Approximately 500 citizens of the Patmos community greeted the Hope club on its good-will visit.

W. S. Atkins, Hope attorney, explained the annual essay contest sponsored by the Kiwanis organization. Charles Dana Gibson acted as master of ceremonies. The Hempstead county quartet furnished music.

COLUMBUS, Ohio.—(AP)—Two boys and two girls, returning home from a "date," were killed late Friday night when a fast freight train struck their automobile 17 miles east of here.

The dead: JONATHAN MILLS, 19, HAROLD AMSPAUGH, 19, MABLE LUCILLE LINK, 18, WILLMA GLADYS LINK, 16. All were killed instantly.

To Eliminate Crossings

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—President Roosevelt Friday laid down the principles to govern the spending of $100,000,000 and $200,000,000 of work relief funds for making grade crossings safe.

The president cited the accident Thursday night at Rockville, Md., in which 14 pupils were killed when a school bus was smashed by a train as an illustration of the need for grade crossing elimination.

Principles Outlined.

President Roosevelt outlined four basic principles to govern the spending of money for grade crossing. They were that:

States and localities shall provide land for doing away with the crossings.

Crossings eliminated shall be on main line railroads.

The federal government will pay full cost of the work.

To these, he added a previous specification that he had laid down for all work relief—that all work that can be done shall be completed before July 1, 1936. Because of this, he said, there would be no time to iron out disputes that might arise over securing land for elimination work.

Scientists Look at the Quins

Recently a number of scientists at the University of Minnesota contributed their views as to the significance to medical science of the Dionne quintuplets. They were interesting primarily because so many babies were born at one time.

The babies are interesting also because it is the only case on record in the history of the world in which five children born simultaneously have lived beyond the first few hours of life.

Of course, Dr. A. R. Dafoe has made for his more scientific conferences and for the specialists, a few fundamental observations that are of importance to medical science for the future. His original account of the births of the quintuplets, published in The Journal of the American Medical Association, received universal acclaim and has been mentioned for the Pulitzer prize.

Moreover, his modesty in response to the enthusiasm with which he was greeted in this country set a record possibly second only to that of Lindbergh. The successful birth and rearing of the quintuplets under the primitive conditions existing in that portion of Canada which Doctor Dafoe serves is everywhere heralded as a major scientific achievement.

Contributing their views to the discussion were some professors at the University of Minnesota specializing in various aspects of health and growth. To the biologist, Dr. D. E. Minnich, the birth of quintuplets is interesting, first, because it raises the question of the maximum number of babies that may be born to a human mother at one time.

Twins occur once in every 80 or 90 births, and triplets and quadruplets much more rarely, but the chance of five children at one time is one in many millions and the fact that they survived is, as he has said, absolutely unique.

The maximum number of infants born at one time, by authentic records of six. There are, however, no records of six children having been born at one time with survival of even a few of them for a long period.

The biologists also are interested because the question is raised as to the mechanism by which they develop. It is realized that the infants develop from one egg cell or from several.

As a rule the human mother liberates but one egg cell at one time. Occasionally, however, several egg cells may be released at the same time, and if each of these is fertilized an offspring will develop.

If the infants are developed from one egg cell, they are likely to resemble each other very closely. They are then called identical twins or triplets. If, however, they develop from several cells, they may be more like a like than ordinary brothers and sisters.

In human beings the chance of two offspring from one egg is relatively rare. This, of course, is apparent to everyone from the small numbers of identical twins seen in any community.

The evidence available concerning the Dionne quintuplets indicates that they may be identical, as can be seen from a study of the remarkable pictures which NEA Service has made available. The scientists are going to be more interested in studying them further as they develop.

NEXT: The sociologist's view of the quintuplets.

Mellon Tax Case in Sudden Change

Government Attacks Steel Merger With Bethlehem Corporation

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—(AP)—The government shifted its attack in the A. W. Mellon income tax case Friday to the merger of the McClintic-Marshall corporation with Bethlehem Steel in 1931.

Bethlehem acquired the $21,000,000 steel fabricating business of McClintic-Marshall in exchange for some of its common stock and bonds, some 40 days after the company had divested itself of $14,000,000 in assets by formation of the Union Construction company.

In seeking $3,089,000 additional taxes from the former secretary of the Treasury, the government has charged that the Bethlehem transaction was a merger but a sale and that therefore the entire $21,000,000 should be treated as a capital gain and be taxed. Mellon owned 30 per cent of McClintic-Marshall.

Ernest H. Van Fossan, presiding member of the Tax Appeals Board, announced that after the evidence is completed in Pittsburgh the hearing will move to Washington. Earlier it had been agreed to go to New York for testimony of 20 Mellon witnesses regarding valuation testimony of McClintic-Marshall and about the $3,000,000 in payments which Mellon gave to a trust company and on which he is asking deductions from his income.

Great Scenic Center

turned back into the ranks of unemployed.

Scenic Center Planned
One new project, to be launched soon, is that of making Boulder Lake a great recreation center. In perhaps the most scenic spot in America, it will be developed as a fishing, boating, bathing, and hunting region, a paradise for the outdoor vacationist, all supervised by Uncle Sam.

The world's biggest man-made lake should be full in four or five years. (Its water would then cover all New York state to a depth of one foot!)

It will be 1200 feet above sea level, with mountains around it, and have 550 miles of shore line.

Below the reservoir are about 2,000,000 acres of irrigable land, of which 600,000 already are irrigated, mostly in California.

New irrigation, however, is not the main consideration in building Boulder Dam. Flood control, silt control, domestic water supply for Pacific coast cities, and electric power are the four big reasons.

Power Sale to Pay Cost
The power sale will pay for the dam, under contracts for it already signed. The Boulder power plants have a capacity of 1,835,000 horsepower. (Niagara has only 452,500; Muscle Shoals 250,000, with a potential of 600,000 only; Dnieperstroy in Russia, 750,000.)

The city of Los Angeles and the California Edison Company will operate and maintain the power plant. The greatest power lines ever conceived already are strung across the state to Los Angeles, nearly 200 miles away. Beginning in September, Boulder Dam ultimately will create three times the electricity any project ever offered, and there are a dozen or more other good dam sites on the Colorado, if need arises. Electricity may help wipe out human drudgery, with a good start toward it right here.

Thousands Visit Dam
More than 1000 tourists a day are seeing Boulder Dam now, and the number is increasing. Tremendous in every sense, it is hard to grasp without prolonged study, but soon the nation will be familiar with its physical aspects, at least.

Ultimately all nations will realize that here is the greatest single man-made wonder in all the world, because it is not just a circus or a show place, not just a monument or a statue or a private money-making scheme.

It is a gigantic adventure in human progress and emancipation.

THE END.

Central Park, in the heart of New York City, was set aside in 1858. It covers 1000 acres.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

It's Time to Clean Up on Cosmetics.

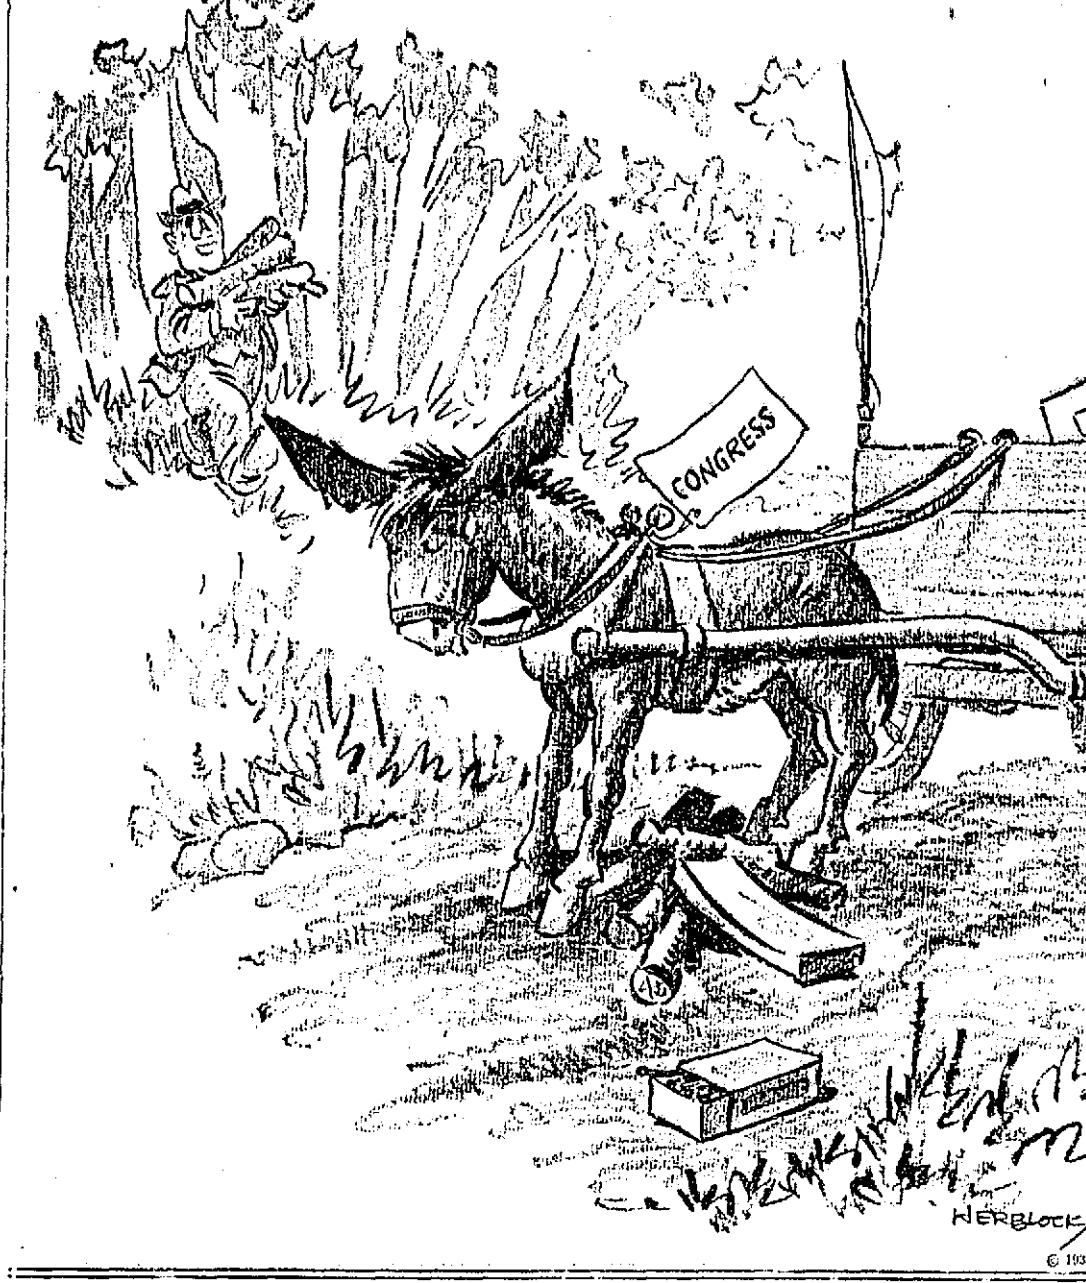

Spring housecleaning in the name of beauty is a very important pre-Easter task indeed. This is the time when you should use your odds and ends of cosmetic preparations, make a list of items you'll need, and then, keeping an eye out for sales and special offers, gradually begin to replenish your stock.

Don't buy a lot of unnecessary supplies that you know perfectly well you'll never have time to use. You must have the four essentials, of course, and whatever makeup you generally put on your skin. Aside from these, there's nothing you need except maybe one or two special creams or lotions to correct an individual defect.

Choose the four essentials carefully. The cleansing cream should be a light-textured variety that will melt the minute it is applied. The skin tonic ought to be mild if you are young, and slightly stronger if you are mature. Keep it in the icebox. Or, if you prefer, put a bit of it in a bowl and set the bowl in cracked ice for a few minutes before you intend to pat it on your skin.

The other cream should be rich and nourishing if you have a dry condition—a grossless, rather stringent type if your skin is oily. This applies to the foundation cream or lotion you choose, too. Generally speaking, the vanishing creams are for oily complexions—the lotions for dry and normal ones.

Rouge, powder, lipstick and, if you use it, eye make-up are your next important considerations. Choose them for their quality and suitability to your particular needs.

NEXT: Spring perfumes.

The DARK BLOND

BEGIN HERE TODAY
MILICENT GRATES, secretary to GEORGE DUMGOLD, finds her employer in his office dead. JAKVIS HAPF, a stranger, offers to help her. He sends her to a beauty shop where she is transformed into a beauty, then takes her home, introducing her as his secretary. She meets HARRY VAN NOLMAN, his stepson, ROBERT CALISE, MRS. HAPF, and VERA DUCHENE, Mrs. Hapf's maid.

That night a note under her door informs Millicent, "The woman in black came to her." Millicent goes to the woman, tries to follow, but loses her. Millicent goes to the chauffeur's quarters. The chauffeur is dead from a fatal wound.

Next morning SERGEANT MAHONEY takes charge of the case. Fingerprints are found on a whisky bottle in the chauffeur's room. By means of a trick Sergeant Mahoney secures Millicent's fingerprints.

Millicent goes into the bathroom to wash the ink from her fingers. Returning, she finds a masked man who advances threateningly.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXVII
MILICENT recoiled from those menacing fingers. The man followed slowly, matching her retreat by advancing step for step. His eyes glittering, his lips twisted back from his teeth.

Suddenly Millicent's eyes fastened on the gun which Sergeant Mahoney had handed her and which still lay on the table over her bed. She jumped toward it, grabbed it in her hand and screamed, "Get back or I'll shoot!"

The masked man froze into immobility, staring at the gun. Millicent held it, not by the butt, but with her fingers clasped around the barrel, and she was careful to keep the muzzle pointed at the masked intruder.

"I mean it!" Millicent screamed. "I'll shoot!"

Suddenly the closet door opened. Sergeant Mahoney's cheery voice came. "Well, I guess that's about all, Buchanan."

The masked man dropped his threatening attitude. Before Millicent's startled eyes, he raised his hands, removed his mask and showed her Detective Buchanan's rather crestfallen countenance.

"I felt certain she didn't know how to use a gun when I handed her this one," Sergeant Mahoney said.

Millicent felt her knees growing weak. She sat down on the side of the bed, staring dazedly from Sergeant Mahoney to Detective Buchanan.

"I'm sorry," he said, "that we had to make such a test, but I felt certain you didn't know how to use a gun. The person who killed Harry Felding was an expert pistol shot. There were no powder marks on the body, indicating that the person must have been some little distance away, yet the single shot sped true."

"I handed you this gun a little while ago and the way you started to reach for it convinced me you didn't know anything at all about shooting."

"I d-d-d-d-d-d!" Millicent said. "That's all right, sister," he told her, patting her back.

MILICENT liked the feel of his arm about her shoulders. For a moment or two she gave way to tears. Then, as the tension was relieved, she straightened, dabbed at her eyes with her

Lamson on Trial for Second Time

Alleged Wife-Slayer's First Conviction Set Aside on Appeal

SAN JOSE, Calif.—(AP)—The long awaited bath tub demonstration was presented by the defense in David Lamson's second trial for wife murder Friday and the results were challenged by the prosecution.

In a reconstruction of the bathroom of the Stanford University campus home where Allene Thoms Lamson died on Memorial Day, 1933, another woman went through the motions of a fall.

Once the living model, Mrs. Christine Phelps, tumbled completely from the bathtub but on a second try she hung over the edge, after theoretically striking her head on the wash basin.

The latter result was declared by the defense to be a re-enactment of what actually happened to Mrs. Lamson in her Stanford University campus home.

Mrs. Phelps was lifted by E. A. Heinrich, defense criminologist—as Lamson's attorneys contend he lifted the crumpled body of his wife—and she slid back into the tub.

Heinrich's restraining hold on Mrs. Phelps was protested by Assistant Prosecutor Herbert Bridges, who demanded that the woman be allowed to fall naturally after striking her head.

"I'll stipulate she would fall to the floor in that event," said Edwin McKenzie, defense attorney.

Mrs. Phelps, an assistant to Heinrich, while repeating the experiment for newspaper photographers, struck her face against the tub and cut her lip slightly.

Lamson, whose first trial conviction and death sentence were set aside by the California Supreme Court, sat without lifting his eyes as judges, jurors and attorneys crowded about the bathroom model to watch the demonstration.

The prosecution charges Lamson killed his attractive young wife by striking her on the head with an iron pipe.

No "Pegging" of Utilities by U. S.

Morgenthau Ridicules Report of Federal Funds in Stock Market

WASHINGTON -- (AP) — Secretary Morgenthau Friday scotched rumors widely circulated in the capital that the Treasury's $2,000,000,000 currency stabilization fund had been used to peg utility security prices. In a one minute telephone conversation with Chairman Rayburn, Democrat, Texas, of the house interstate commerce committee, the Treasury head denied that the fund had been used for this purpose.

"I just talked with the secretary of the Treasury," Rayburn said as the committee recessed for the day. "I don't know of the utility 'peg' company bill." He said if he had done this, it would have been a violation of the law—and of course he didn't do it.

The question came up in the morning when Representative Wolverton, Republican, New Jersey, asked "Solicitor Dozier Devane of the Federal Power Commission if there was any truth to the rumor about the use of stabilization fund." Devane said the knew nothing of it.

Devane testified the securities of the 25 principal utility holding companies had a market value of $19,245,157,757 at the 1929 high sale point, only $2,872,034,949 bid price on February 22, 1933, but a $2,285,015,979 closing price April 9 this year. At the same time, 10 principal independent operating companies' securities dropped from $3,886,067,352 in 1929 to $1,298,840,243 on the 1933 date and to $1,275,807,806 this week he said.

Rayburn declared the figures "conclusively demonstrate that neither the pending holding company bill nor the ratification of the Roosevelt administration are responsible for the losses that have been suffered by the holders of this class of securities."

"Substantially all the losses in those securities," he added, "had taken place before Franklin D. Roosevelt was inaugurated and long before the present holding company bill was drafted."

He emphasized there was shown a shrinkage of more than $10,000,000 or 35 per cent in the value of the companies' securities "before Roosevelt became president."

My little note book is my garden spot, where I deposit every stray thought that blows my way. And like a seed, it will in time develop growth and blossom forth in rhyme to tune my lay. This little garden spot is truly mine, for there I live and work and dream divine of things serene. And though the world without rolls thundering by, my garden laughs beneath an azure sky in verdant green. Know you of spring, when life rejects the tomb and triumphs over death, despair and doom? Therefore, take heed! An acorn will in time produce a tree, A thought enslave you, or will make you free. 'Tis but a seed—Selected.

Home Clubs

Hopewell
As spring approaches interest grows in the Hopewell Demonstration club and on Monday afternoon, April 8, one of the most interesting meetings of the year was held at the home of Mrs. Ollie Martin.

The meeting was called to order by the president who led the opening song "Arkansas." Mrs. Jessie Anderson gave a pretty devotional, followed with a prayer by Mrs. C. Petre.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Fifteen members answered the roll call and 12 visitors were present. Seven new members were taken in.

Reports were heard from the following leaders: Food preservation, food preparation, clothing, poultry gardening and home management.

The annual election of two club officers was held and the following were elected: Mrs. Leonard Hare, art craft and Mrs. Chas. West, landscaping.

After discussing what would like to be done in order to sell the club quilt our recreation leader presented a little game. The one that could pick up the most peas on a knife and run across the room and put them in a small bottle won a prize. Mrs. J. A. Fowler won the pin cushion.

The club was sorry that Miss Griffin was not present and hope she will be able to meet with us next month at the home of Mrs. Henry Fowler.

The hostess served a delightful course of sandwiches, cakes and hot coffee.

The STORY of EASTER

The Wednesday of His last week of public life was spent by Jesus in seclusion, perhaps at the Bethany home where He had been making His stay these final trying days, and where His devoted followers, Martha, Mary, and Lazarus, ministered to Him. He may have passed this day alone, preparing Himself for the end; or in communion with His apostles, bracing them against the coming days. But in Jerusalem, the multitude looked for Him in vain. On this day the Sanhedrists met at the home of Caiaphas to perfect their plans to bring about Jesus' downfall. They were afraid to take Him by force or in the Temple; for this would anger the people. If only they could seize Him secretly and get the Romans to make away with Him! The solution was at hand. They were told a man craved admittance. It was Judas, a disciple of Jesus. "What will you give me," he asked, "if I will deliver Him unto you?" And, for 30 pieces of silver (about $19.50 of our money), Judas agreed to betray his Master.

Dust Storm Only Nature's Warning

Wallace Points Absolute Need for Conservation of the Soil

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Secretary Wallace pointed Friday to dust storms ravaging vast areas of the West as a warning that disaster impends unless a comprehensive land-use policy is adopted and followed. In a message to the annual convention of the Izaak Walton League at Chicago, he said:

"The somber pall of dust that has shrouded the country so frequently during the past few years is only the most spectacular and awe inspiring of the many significant warnings nature is giving us. Disaster is certain to follow if we continue to neglect our land utilization needs."

The secretary's statements came while a move was under way to consolidate in his department all agencies concerned with land use.

Wallace expressed hope that large areas of submarginal farm lands could be bought by the government and restored to natural wilderness conditions.

Houston Gear of Little Rock, who re-sold them to Elkins & Co., but a third of the issue was withdrawn from the sale subsequently and these are being held by the Federal Reserve National bank.

Judge Holmes instructed the bank Friday to return the purchase price of the $10,000 block of bonds to Mr. Elkins upon delivery of the bonds to the bank. He said he would attempt to sell the bond issue again.

Steps were taken to cancel the entire issue after J. Bryan Sims, chief county accountant in the state comptroller's office, had reported to Prosecuting Attorney George F. Hartig of the Seventeenth Judicial Circuit results of a preliminary investigation of the sale and after the prosecuting attorney indicated that he would institute "proper proceedings" to give Prairie county citizens full legal benefit of the bond sale unless the matter was adjusted satisfactorily within 10 days.

Bing Crosby on the Screen Three Days

"Mississippi" Booth Tarkington's "Magnolia" With Music

A picture of melody, mirth and romance woven about a love story of the Old South comes to the Saenger theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday when Paramount's "Mississippi" arrives with Bing Crosby, W. C. Fields and Joan Bennett in the starring cast.

In "Mississippi," Crosby sings for the first time an old favorite, a special arrangement of "Swanee." A chorus of forty negro voices and elaborate settings make this production number one of the highspots of the show.

The story of the picture, adapted from a play by Booth Tarkington, is that of a young Yankee who loses one Dixie sweetheart because he won't duel for her, and almost loses another because he's been doing too much dueling.

Crosby, in the leading role, spends the intervening time between these two romances on the river steamer of Fields, a noisy, blustering braggart who builds him up as the gun-fighting terror of the river, "The Singing Killer."

Songs, comedy and romance are so deftly mixed that "Mississippi" is unflagging entertainment from beginning to end.

Crosby's new hit songs, including the already popular "Soon" and "Down by the River," are the products of Rogers and Hart. Queenie Smith, Broadway stage star, who makes her debut in "Mississippi," and the Five Cabin Kids, a juvenile negro chorus, assist Crosby in musical numbers.

Sun Shines Once More Upon West

Dust-Ridden Area Digs Itself Out—Schools, Business Resume

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Work crews in western Kansas cities, usually employed at this time of the year to shovel away snow left by late storms, Friday were clearing streets of tons of heavy, fertile silt, left in the wake of the most severe dust storm of the season.

Some main highways were covered by dust drifts from one to three feet deep. Out on the plains the carcasses of hundreds of jack rabbits and occasionally that of a smothered cow lay on drifts that topped barbed wire fence posts.

For the first time in a week the sun broke through the "black blizzard," which has subsided after covering many thousands of square miles in Colorado, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico and Kansas.

But clouds of Western dust still swirled over Southern states and was carried out to sea beyond Florida. Dust thick enough to cause eyes to smart settled over Augusta, Ga., while the power was reduced 35 per cent of normal at Jacksonville, Fla.

W. J. Bennett, United States meteorologist at Jacksonville, said most of the dust was being carried to sea high over the peninsula by steady westerly winds.

Friday's respite was the first time since Sunday that many residents of western Kansas had been able to see more than a black or two. They ventured forth from homes where they had been "holed in" and resumed their usual activity.

Schools reopened after a two-day holiday in towns throughout the area. Merchants who had closed their stores Wednesday, when the most severe storm of the series struck, returned to their shops and cleared away from one to several inches of dust.

Farmers said that though the wheat crop appeared to be a total loss in the area, other crops, including corn, will be harvested if some rain or snow comes soon. No permanent relief is expected until there is moisture, for the slightest breeze will bring back the dust clouds.

The livestock loss apparently was not heavy though carcasses of animals occasionally were seen by motorists. Hundreds of cattle were attempting to graze on the silt covered range.

Best Business in 25 Years Is Ahead

So Says Dun & Bradstreet Declaring March Was 1935's "Low"

NEW YORK — (AP) — The sharpest business rise in 25 years was forecast for the immediate future in the weekly business review by Dun & Bradstreet Friday.

"More convincing proof has come forward that the passing of March left behind the lows for the year," the review stated.

"During the week, there was a complete transformation of sentiment, as the hopes for a rather far-removed improvement were replaced by a realization that the immediate future is to bring the sharpest rise that has been witnessed in business in the past quarter of a century."

"All of the reports received were more optimistic than at any time this year in the confident attitude taken regarding a more even tempo of progress from now on."

"Encouragement also was provided by the fact that, in spite of rain, cold, snowfall and recurrent dust storms, consumer demand was sufficiently strong to carry retail distribution to a larger total than for the week preceding."

The New Deal

Published phenomenal records in getting jobs for friends, acquaintances, wives and sweethearts.

These unofficial job-wranglers operate for various reasons. Some seek to widen their little spheres of influence and thus expand a sense of power.

Some are sincerely seeking the best possible talent for New Deal agencies and want to pick associates or subordinates from those of whose merit they personally are aware. Others are paying off various kinds of debts and still others seek jobs for acquaintances, new or old, out of mere kindness. And many are out to land every possible member of their families on the federal payroll.

What a mixture! The result has been a queer melange in New Deal personnel of able workers, nitwits, chair-warmers, and just so-so employees.

Frequently one finds, in the same office, one or two brilliant persons who supply all the work and all the brains and three or four more of equal status—who represent mere waste of taxpayers' money.

Many an able person has been recruited who couldn't have obtained a Democratic endorsement. But many mean injustices have been done to superior men and women whose appointments have been blocked because an inferior person with "pull" sought the same job.

There's no beginning and no end to this nebulous system I'm trying to describe. Except as it begins in the White House with Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt and the secretariat and ends with the negro elevator operator at RFC who is trying to get his girl friend a similar job at Interior or Agriculture. In other words, everybody plays the game.

Roper Does Well by Kin
At least three cabinet members have relatives in other federal jobs here—Roper, Wallace, and Ickes. (It may be unfair to name them because there probably are others.) Roper had five when the last count was made. Millionaires with alleged New Deal sympathies have had little trouble landing their sons in berths "for the experience."

Quite a few society girls are sprinkled around. General Johnson started in by leading NRA with personal associates whom he "knew he could trust."

One man who three years ago was collecting money to beat Roosevelt for the presidency has landed six members of his family in government berths.

A smart woman who came to town about a year ago has successfully berthed two sons, a daughter-in-law, and finally herself. There are many such instances.

Bootlegger "Makes Good"
The other day I ran into a fellow who before repeal was one of the capital's best-known bootleggers. By pestering his old customers in high places, he had conscientiously placed four youths who used to run liquor for him—and also the sister of one of them.

He was now about to approach one of the three or four most important officials to get a job for himself. (Knowing the official, I doubt if he made out very well this time.)

One can think of several subdivisions of government overloaded with nice, middle-aged or elderly people there because they had sympathetic friends and simply "had to have a job."

Put Wives to Work
Many husbands have kept working at it until they managed to obtain two incomes for the family instead of one. But the $3000-a-year husbands usually have had more success placing their wives than the fellows struggling along on $12000 a year who had no need more money.

The moral of all this is perhaps the same one that has always applied to nepotism in Congress. A congressman's wife or son may be the best possible secretary, both for him and his constituents. Or such a relative may be one who never comes near his office or, in any event, has no place on the federal payroll.

But one thing's sure: Washington was never such a paradise for the born wire-puller.
